Service is typically effectuated by contacting the DOJ mailroom after which a clerk will meet the process server and accept service. However, since the Covid-19 pandemic, this location has refused in person service and only accepts service by mail.

If you need a court summons or other legal document promptly served on the United States Department of Justice, the Attorney General for the United States, or the United States of America, please contact Cavalier today for correct, cost-effective process service.

Pro Se Litigant Policy

At Cavalier, we only provide services to legal professionals. This means we do not provide our services to pro se litigants, i.e. individual parties who are not represented by counsel. We do not make exceptions to this policy.

Working with pro se litigants presents numerous ethical and professional dilemmas. While we have an unparalleled practical understanding of the Rules of Civil Procedure as they relate to service of process, we are not attorneys and cannot provide legal advice. We may be able to suggest that a party's counsel review our understanding of code, but making the same suggestion to a pro se litigant would be the practice of law. Providing services to pro se litigants would require us to provide services that we know are incorrect or improper but without the ability to give a party the benefit of our expertise.

If you wish to contract Cavalier's services, please have your counsel reach out to us so we can ensure that your case is handled correctly.
